S1003 (Chapter 282): DCS OVERSIGHT COMMITTEE	Various changes related to the Department of Child Safety (DCS). Effective July 1, 2018, the list of circumstances under which a child can be taken into temporary custody is modified to include pursuant to an order of the superior court, instead of the juvenile court, or on the consent of the child's parent or guardian. In order to issue an order authorizing DCS to take temporary custody of a child, the superior court must find that it is contrary to the child's welfare to remain in the home. For a child to be taken into temporary custody without a court order, the peace officer, child welfare investigator or child safety worker must have probable cause to believe that the child will imminently become a victim of abuse or neglect in the time it would take to obtain a court order. Session law requires DCS, by January 1, 2018, to consult with the Administrative Office of the Courts to develop systems and procedures to implement these changes, and to report to the Legislature specified information related to the implementation. Also effective July 1, 2018, DCS is prohibited from using covert voice stress analysis during an investigation to determine if abuse or neglect exists, and is prohibited from using covert voice stress analysis during an investigation unless the person on whom the analysis is used gives informed consent. Results of computer voice stress analysis are not admissible in court. Except in judicial proceedings, a parent or guardian cannot be prohibited from recording conversations with DCS.	First sponsor: Sen. Barto		5/8 signed by governor.
